

Barix body guarding transmitters

The company Broadcast Australia is Australia's leading Television and Radio programming provider. They have broadcasting transmitters throughout the continent, even in remote rural areas.

To guarantee that the broadcast transmitters are in operational status the company is using Barix as a solution for every single transmitter.

The Barix Instreamer continuously monitors the broadcast on site to make sure that audio is being broadcasted.

If a broadcast transmitter goes silent then the Instreamer automatically sends an alarm message over the Internet to the company headquarters.

The Instreamer also gives the company remote servicing ability by allowing a particular transmitter to be accessed from the central server at any given time.

For further information, detailed technical specification and information about other versions and products please visit www. barix. com